I'm a huge fan of the Law in a Flash series of study aids for 1L courses. The Torts, Contracts, and Civil Procedure cards are great. I haven't used the Property cards yet, but my study partner is using them right now, and he gives high reviews. I earned A's in Torts and Contracts after using these cards to supplement my outlining. (haven't gotten my Civ Pro grade back yet)The Crim Law cards fell short of my expectations. Crim Law is a vast area, and lot of case books are floating around. We used Dressler, a common case book. These cards weren't even close to using the same cases. Further, several topics, e.g. rape, only had four or five cards in total. Under inchoate offenses, there were more than fifty on just conspiracy (not a huge 1L topic).If I had it to do over, I'd buy a used set of these unless they get radically updated soon. They might be useful to you, but it's a close call. If you're on the fence, maybe it's best to just spend a couple extra hours on you outline.

I like that the questions weren't overly easy. There was some challenge. The explanation on the back is great reinforcement. The only problem I had was the questions which were very similar to each other. I understand, it's the same topic- but I was hoping for a variation in the fact pattern to really test my skills. But overall- I like it.

These provided a good overall review of the major areas of crim law as I start refreshing 1L in prep for the bar exam. The user will not relearn all the elements of criminal law, nor does it substitute for a good solid study of the subject. It does, however, serve as a great test and refresher, and the hypos are very useful.

Ok so I was expecting a box since that's what I saw in the picture but no, there was no box and it came in a plastic bag....and I had to reorganize all of these cards which was a crazy hassle...so a little more notice would be great....apart from that the cards were in awesome condition

I ended up doing a flex program at my law school and not needing this my Fall semester. I gave them to another one of my classmates who used them and said they were helpful. The others in the series were also helpful so I imagine that's true.

I'm a big fan of the Law in a Flash series. These cards make for a great supplemental study aid. The best feature, in my opinion, is the "scenario" questions. These are like mini-fact patterns designed to get you thinking about one particular issue. I've found these to help get my mind around particular topics in a format conducive to an essay style exam (which all of my instructors use). I do wish that the cards had some more "concept w/definition" cards (where one side gives a word, concept, or issue, and the answer side has a rote definition), but it's not a major issue. I also do think that there was a bit too much repetition at times, and the product could have been pared down a bit. But maybe that repetition helps some people, despite annoying people like me.

These are great to get Crim Law organized and to fill in your outline for the class. I found that flipping through them on my train ride in made my exams easily in the end!

Thank you...very needed. It helps with examples and actual situations that you can apply the law to as well as criminal law concepts. Thank you.
